Culturally Responsive Teaching for Multilingual Learners: Tools for Equity

Featuring

Dr. Sydney Snyder &
Diane Staehr Fenner

In this hands-on workshop, Drs. Sydney Snyder and Diane Staehr Fenner present a framework and demonstrate strategies from their best-selling book Culturally Responsive Teaching for Multilingual Learners: Tools for Equity. You will explore the definition of culture and its role in teaching and learning. You will also learn about five guiding principles for developing a culturally responsive school climate for multilingual learners, discussing tools and strategies framed around these five principles. Finally, you will also have an opportunity to apply these strategies to your context, choosing an application activity option that is relevant for you.

Diane Staehr Fenner, Ph.D., is the author of several books on English learner and Multilingual learner education and president of SupportEd, a woman-owned small business based in the Washington, DC area that provides professional development, technical assistance, and curriculum and assessment support to empower ELs, MLs, and their educators. You can connect with her at Diane@GetSupportEd.net or on Twitter at @DStaehrFenner.

Sydney Snyder, Ph.D., is the co-author of Culturally Responsive Teaching for Multilingual Learners; Tools for Equity and Unlocking English Learners' Potential: Strategies for Making Content Accessible and a Principal Associate with SupportEd, a woman-owned small business dedicated to advocacy and educational equity for multilingual learners and their families.
