

Who said size matters?

Look at some graphic novels. Find some panels that have/are:

- Small panels
- Standard sized panels
- A one or two page spread

Each type of panel gives a different message to the reader.

Discuss: Why does the author choose to have small images? Why are some scenes depicted with a whole page? What are the most common number of panels/frames on each page?