

In the Hallway

Many children go to my school and walk in the hallways. Sometimes the hallways are crowded and loud.

Going to music, and gym is fun, but I need to go through the hallways to get there.

Sometimes kids get loud when they go in the halls. Sometimes kids run.

Sometimes kids touch the walls.

I will try to be safe when I walk in the halls and follow the school rules. I will try to use walking feet, and stay in a line with my teacher.

This is a safe thing to do because halls can be crowded, and kids can get hurt if they run and fall.

Sometimes children are loud or yell in the halls. That hurts my ears.

When I walk in the hall, I will try to be very quiet.

This is a good idea because children in classrooms are trying to listen to their teacher. Being quiet makes listening easier.

When I walk in the hallway, I will try to remember to keep my hands only on me.

This is a good idea because it is not nice to bother people. My friends will be happy when I leave them alone. And I will be happy because my friends will like it.

I will try not to touch the walls. This is important because I can help to keep my school clean. The custodian will be happy because he will not have to clean the walls.

Sometimes my teachers will smile and say "Good Job" when I follow the hallway rules because I will not bother them and they will not get hurt.

My friends will be happy and I will be proud and happy. It will make me feel good to follow the hallway rules.
